EDUCATION

Ph.D.

University of California, Los Angeles, CA 2010 – 2015
Dissertation Title: Measurement of Psychosocial Resources, Allostatic Load, and Their Relations
Major: Health Psychology; Minor: Quantitative Psychology — GPA: 3.96/4.00

Master of Arts

University of California, Los Angeles, CA 2010 – 2011
Thesis Title: Psychosocial Resources as a Constellation
Major: Health Psychology

Bachelor of Arts

University of California, Riverside, CA 2006 – 2010
Major: Psychology — GPA: 3.95/4.00

General Coursework

Riverside Community College, Riverside, CA 2002 – 2005
Major: Undeclared — GPA: 4.00/4.00

RESEARCH SUMMARY

I study the roles of risk and protective factors, particularly psychosocial resources and coping, in the psychological and biological response to stress and chronic disease such as cancer. I harness my background in health psychology and advanced quantitative methods to answer questions three types of questions: (1) What are the trajectories of mental and physical health in response to stress and are these predicted by resources or change in coping strategy? (2) Do psychological and physical processes move in synchrony or co-regulate? (3) What are the mechanisms and causal chains linking risk and protective factors, psychological, and physical health outcomes?

PUBLICATION SUMMARY

Published/In Press: 11 peer reviewed articles, 2 non peer reviewed manuscripts.

7 articles currently under peer review

In Preparation: 12 articles and 1 book chapter

24 peer reviewed conference abstracts and 5 invited presentations

Software: 5 software packages developed/co-developed, including one cited in at least 20 articles

WORK EXPERIENCE

Australia Catholic University

January 2015 – Present

Post Doctoral Research Fellow

- Work on validating the Green Amber Red Delineation of Risk and Need and tailoring it to specific diseases of atrial fibrillation and acute coronary syndrome.

Elkhart Group Ltd.

June 2013 – Present

Senior analyst and statistical consultant

- Consult on and analyze data for industry and academic researchers
- Responsible for high level data models, custom analytics, and team projects. Sample projects include: multiple mediator analysis, hierarchical Bayesian models for categorical data, joint models for non-ignorable dropout in pre-clinical trials, dimension reduction and analysis of app and device data, and machine learning to find novel patterns and relations in hundreds of clinical endpoints.
- Prepare and write reports for stakeholders and detailed methods for grant proposals and scientific publication

My Year After (MYA) breast cancer study (1R01 CA133081)

July 2013 – March 2015

Graduate Researcher

- Responsible for conducting analyses and generating reports and graphs for the primary project
- Employed advanced analytics including: latent class analysis, growth mixture models, multilevel structural equation modeling (SEM) for multilevel mediation, continuous time SEM, survival analysis, missing data models
- Implemented code for automatic processing of data cleaning and management and production of descriptive statistic tables and charts
- Created a securely-hosted online codebook dynamically linked to the automated data cleaning and management procedures
- Advised on analyses for secondary projects

Stanton Stress & Coping Laboratory

June 2010 – Present

Doctoral Student and Researcher

- Research on coping, quality of life, and adjustment to breast and eye cancer (ocular melanoma)
- Research on the conceptualization and measurement of psychosocial resources
- Co-PI on an experimental study of emotional reactions to receiving negative health information
- Supervise research assistants and honors students

University of California, Los Angeles

IDRE Statistical Consulting Group

August 2011 – June 2013

- Spearheaded an initiative to begin contract work, securing multi-thousand dollar contracts for topics such as hierarchical Bayesian modeling and latent variable models.
- Worked individually with UCLA researchers to understand their goals and use statistics to provide clear, actionable results.
- Assisted with manuscript and grant preparation including advising on appropriate methods and conducting power analyses.
- Created web page tutorials and examples of statistical concepts and programming in R, Mplus, SAS, Stata, & SPSS. Topics included multilevel mediation analysis, random effects models for categorical data, data visualization to explore nonlinear relationships and longitudinal models, approximating SRMR in SEM with missing data.
- Developed and implemented a system for automating the inclusion of R code and output in web pages.

Relationships and Health Laboratory

September 2010 – December 2011

Relationship and Expression Study

PIs: Theodore Robles, Ph.D. and Heidi Kane, Ph.D.

Aided in study design and supervise undergraduate RAs.

Relations of Personality and Occupation with Alcohol Consumption

Supervisors: Howard S. Friedman, Ph.D. and Kate Sweeny, Ph.D.

Undergraduate honors thesis examining the relations between adult personality traits, occupation, and alcohol use one decade later.

A Nonverbal Approach to Charismatic Leadership Training

PIs: Howard S. Friedman, Ph.D. and Brynn C. Nodarse, Ph.D.

Overseeing 10-20 undergraduate RAs in conducting a dissertation study including nonverbal assessments and training.

TECHNICAL SKILLS

Statistical & Mathematical

Mastery of mixed effects and latent variable models

Biostatistics experience: survival models, ROC analysis, propensity scores, RCT evaluation

Missing data experience: multiple imputation, full information maximum likelihood, Bayesian methods, joint models, non ignorable missingness with latent class/mixture analysis

Psychological experience: latent variable models for factor analysis, structural equation models, growth models, parallel process models

Speciality Topics: Bayesian factor analysis and SEM, location and scale models for modeling intra-individual variability in intensive longitudinal studies

Mastery of R and Mplus

Proficient with major packages including SAS Analytics, Stata, IBM SPSS Statistics

Experience with specialty analytics software including STAN, JAGS, WinBUGS, EQS, OpenMx

Graduate statistics coursework in biostatistics, statistics, and quantitative psychology

Programming

Mastery of R: A language and environment for statistical computing

Experience with bash, C++, JavaScript and JSON, SQL, version control systems (`git`, `svn`)

Publishing

Microsoft (Access, Excel, PowerPoint, Visio, Visual Web Developer, Word)

L^AT_EX, BibTeX, GNU Emacs

HTML5, CSS, php

Operating Systems

Windows (all desktop variants)
Linux (Debian, Ubuntu)
